

Foundation of Trust

Building successful relationships requires trust. Without trust, every task takes longer and negatively impact organizational results. Through this experiential program, participants learn the essential ingredients for creating trust and a proven approach for rebuilding trust when it has been broken. The level of trust any business relationship, whether internal to the organization or external is directly correlated to success.

We provide a proven conceptual frameworks to intelligently assess and improve on trust in all of your relationships. Often a crisis is needed for team to address the level of trust it has with each other and with its customers. We make sure you are proactive in building your level of trust to make sure crisis's are avoided. Through our Foundation of Trust™ learning process your group develops advanced knowledge about how to develop their trust in relationship to one another as a team, without the need of a crisis. Team members develop A deep sense of fellowship and personal accountability as the result for teams who attend this process. In this training we show that trust starts with yourself. Researchers have established through empirical studies that organizations with higher levels of trust out-perform those that have low trust. A high trust team or organization enjoys from two to five times the productivity of a low trust team or organization. No team, individual or organization can survive for very long if they have created a culture of low trust.
